MY ANTHONY: Tonight's projected starter for Kansas City is left-hander Anthony Boughner. The ex-Orioles and Reds farmhand will be making his tenth start of the season. Boughner, who was projected to start on opening day, came down with leg injury moments before the first game, sending him to the disabled list. On the season, he is 2-3 with a 6.79 ERA, but has improved statistically each month of the season. He is 1-0 with a 4.34 ERA in three starts in July. Boughner has recorded two consecutive no-decisions despite strong efforts where he pitched six innings with only two earned runs against Winnipeg July 6 and seven and one-thirds innings on July 13 where he allowed no earned runs. Also, after giving up eight or more hits in his first seven starts, he responded with five-hit and four-hit performances in his last two appearances.

MR. SMITH GOES TO KANSAS CITY: Tonight's projected starter for the Jackhammers is right-hander Matt Smith. The Southwest Missouri State grad will be making his 12th start on the year. Smith is having his best month as he is 2-0 with a 2.53 ERA in three July starts. In his last start he pitched a complete game against Gary, surrendering just one run on a solo homer in a Joliet win. Smith excels towards the end of games as he has allowed just two runs from the sixth inning on. Smith pitches to his defense as he has struck out only 24 batters and has issued a free pass to 21 batters.

HOME SWEET HOME: T-Bones infielder Rob Watson has done his best work this season inside CommunityAmerica Ballpark, reaching base safely in all 26 home games this season. During the streak, the former Tigers and Padres farmhand owns a .468 OBP while batting .320 and slugging four homers at home. He also has hit his only triple of the season and stole his three bases to date in the friendly confines.

SCORING WOES: The T-Bones bats started the first half of the season on fire, scoring the second most total runs in the league and scoring five or more runs in 35 of their 48 total contests. In the second half, the scoring has not come as easy as they have scored three or less runs in five of the six contests. The team owns a collective .200 average in the second half compared to a .303 mark in the first half.

DUDE, WHERE'S THE RELIEF: This season has been rough on Kansas City pitchers as they own the second worst ERA in the Northern League. The bullpen has really struggled, allowing an earned run in 37 of their 50 total appearances, an average of an earned run in 74 percent of their chances. The bullpen has done better of lately, as the bullpen has pitched scoreless innings of relief five times in 13 July chances.

PACKING THEM IN: For the second consecutive night at CommunityAmerica Ballpark, the T-Bones drew their largest crowd for that day of the year. The 5,539 crowd on July 16 was the top Monday outing of the year, with last night's 6,083 the largest Tuesday outing. Overall, Kansas City is on pace to shatter their single-season attendance mark for the fifth straight year. The largest crowd in T-Bones history came this season as well on June 23 versus Fargo-Moorhead where 10,345 showed up for the Saturday contest.
